Murray Irrigation sets the record straight

Murray Irrigation set the record straight last week, after being mentioned in Parliament by the NSW Water Minister, Melinda Pavey, as she voted against Member for Murray, Helen Dalton's, Water Management Amendment (Water Rights Transparency) Bill.

Philip Endley, Chief Executive Officer, said the company wholeheartedly supports greater transparency of water ownership, water markets and improved compliance measures.

Wetlands Watering Program

Murray Irrigation has contacted 46 customers (comprising of 66 potential wetlands), regarding participation in the 2020/21 Wetlands Watering Program. Of these, 42 have expressed an interest in participating.

We strongly encourage customers who have not previously participated in the Wetland Watering Program, to contact the Customer Operations Team to determine eligibility.

Water orders and Daylight Savings

Daylight Savings starts this Sunday, 4 October 2020.

Customers placing water orders scheduled to finish after this date will note that the water ordering system will increase the order by one hour at lodgement.

The Customer Operations Team will adjust those orders to the correct operating time for the outlet.

For assistance with ordering, please contact Customer Operations.

Access track clearing

Contractors have commenced slashing along Murray Irrigation's access tracks in the Deniliquin and Finley areas.

They will move to the Wakool area this week.

This work is part of our standard maintenance practice to ensure clear access to these areas.

Thank you to the 200 randomly selected customers who recently participated in the Customer Satisfaction survey, conducted by Bartley Consulting.
